DISCARDED REPTILES GET SECOND CHANCE AT LIFE

An aquarium and a large, mysterious container - that is what one of our staff members found as she arrived to the shelter one chilly morning. What was inside? A bearded dragon in the aquarium and a large Colombian Red-Tail Boa in the other. At first, it was not clear what was in the large brown box. The container was broken and flipped over so you could not see inside. It almost looked as though it was just shoved off the back of a truck. These poor animals just discarded without a care for their well being. The large container was so heavy it took several staff members to flip it over. Inside, the large snake was discovered.

We were able to remove the snake safely and our staff brought the animals inside where they were placed under heat lamps to warm up. Both animals went into foster homes where they could continue to heal from the traumatic morning they had.

The woman fostering the snake, which she named Lilith, fell in love with her. She knew right away that she wanted to give her the loving forever home she deserved. The bearded dragon, which was named Reptar, spent a little more time in foster care. Once fully healed, he entered into our adoption program where he quickly found a new home to give him love. Thanks to your support, what started as such a sad experience turned into a success story for both Lilith and Reptar.
